Happy New Year!

As we say goodbye to 2023, I continue to be thankful for the many blessings I am given each year - God, my family, and all of you showed up for me big time again this year and I am so appreciative! I'm looking forward to 2024 and all its possibilities. I loved all the opportunities I had to speak at so many events this year! God placed a new message on my heart (Get Up, Dress Up, Never Give Up) for me to share and I'm excited to be able to offer it this year at events large and small! I would love to be considered as a speaker for any event you may be planning for this year. I'm also excited to hear all you have planned for the new year!

Do you have any New Year traditions? Do you make resolutions? I really don't make resolutions but I do like to take this time to first reflect on the previous year and see what I have accomplished. Then I like to take this new beginning and think about what I would like to do better in the new year. I try to think of things I would like to do to make me a better person. I think it is important that we all strive to always be better than we were the day before.

We all hear "A New Year - A New You" but I really don't like that. I much prefer "A New Year - A Better You". You don't need to try to be someone new. God made you just the way you are and you are each very special and YOU-nique! Don't try to be someone you are not. Just try to think of ways you can improve on the amazing woman that you already are.

Maybe you want to lose weight this year for better health. Maybe you want to be more organized for better mental health. Maybe you want to spend less and save more for better financial well-being. Or maybe you want to spend more time with family and friends and enjoy life to the fullest. These are the top resolutions every year. I think the past few years have certainly given us all a time to reflect on what is really important in our lives.

I love setting goals but the problem is we tend to set so many unrealistic goals that, unless we are Superwoman, we can't possibly attain them all (at least not in the first month anyway). Then we become disappointed in ourselves because we didn't lose 30 lbs. after those first 2 weeks at the gym or the whole house didn't get organized in that one day you set aside to do it.

I would like to encourage you to focus on making 2024 your best year yet! Take some time and reflect on the blessings of last year and be thankful for those. Then take some time to decide what you would like to accomplish in 2024 to make it even better.

I am looking forward to sharing this new year with you and giving you tips through my emails and social media to help you become the best YOU that YOU can be!

Thank you for coming along with me on this amazingly fun, faithful and fashionable journey!
